Welcome to the NICE Annual Conference 2020

NICE 2020: Connecting evidence, people and practice showcases the latest developments in clinical improvement, health technologies and patient-centred quality care.

Bringing frontline staff and leaders from across health and care together with the life sciences, health tech and digital sectors, the event outlines the innovations shaping health and care, together with practical advice for those on the frontline of delivering high-quality care.

The programme will explore topics ranging from the challenges of following the evidence, to how climate change, artificial intelligence and genetics will impact the health and care landscape.

NICE 2020 packs 12 hours of content into just one day:

- Renowned keynote speakers, including conference host, clinician and broadcaster Dr Phil Hammond
- The complexities of over-diagnosis and how the health care system can respond to health risks around heart disease, stroke and respiratory disease
- The post Brexit world: explore the practical implications for the NHS and the role of global regulators
- Meet your NICE Field Team representatives and learn how our guidance can be used at the heart of integrated care in your area

Plus, find out how NICE guidance and quality standards are being used to make a difference to people's lives, at the 2020 NICE Shared Learning Awards on Tuesday 10 November at 7pm at the Hilton Manchester Deansgate. Join us to hear how colleagues from across the UK are putting NICE guidance and standards into practice.

Save on your conference place by booking before Friday 20 March! Please click 'Register' on the menu bar and follow the registration process.
